THE OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF WOUNDS CANADA

CALL FOR ARTICLES

SERVING THE TOTAL CANADIAN WOUND CARE COMMUNITY

Wound Care Canada is the voice of Canadian wound care. It focuses on all aspects of acute and chronic wound care, from prevention to cure. Its mission is to share the latest evidence-based information and clinical experiences in an authoritative, reader-friendly format. Our readers range from wound care novices to established experts in a variety of clinical disciplines, to generalist health-care providers. We welcome any articles that, through the sharing of evidence-informed knowledge, education and clinical experience, lead to the better prevention and management of acute and chronic wounds. As such, our journal aims to provide a variety of topics and types of articles to appeal to a wide spectrum of disciplines and expertise.

We invite interested parties to submit their articles in English for review and possible publication in Wound Care Canada. The journal welcomes research papers, reviews, case reports and other manuscripts within the interdisciplinary scope of prevention and care.

Wound Care Canada is supported and reviewed by an eminent group of editors and reviewers. The Editorial Board is composed of published wound care clinicians, educators, academics and related authorities. The Board oversees the peer-review process including evaluating submissions, selecting reviewers, assessing their comments and making the final editorial decisions and recommendations to authors. Published articles are assigned a DOI number.
